

Russian Language Studies

Open Access and Publication Policies

Russian Language Studies (RLS) publishes scholarly research in Russian language studies and related fields. The journal supports broad, barrier-free access to its published academic content while maintaining editorial and peer-review standards.

OA OPEN ACCESS
Freely accessible scholarly research

CC CC BY 4.0
Creative Commons Attribution 4.0

1. Open Access Policy

Russian Language Studies provides open access to its published scholarly content. Readers may access, read, download, copy, search, link to, and otherwise use the published articles without subscription or paywall barriers, subject to the terms of the applicable Creative Commons license and applicable law.

2. Copyright and Licensing

Unless otherwise stated for a particular item, articles published by the journal are distributed under the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International (CC BY 4.0) license. This license permits sharing and adaptation, including for commercial purposes, provided that appropriate credit is given, a link to the license is provided, and any changes are indicated.

3. Author Rights

Authors retain the copyright in their work, subject to the publication and licensing terms agreed with the journal. Authors may share and disseminate their published work in accordance with the CC BY 4.0 license, including through institutional repositories, personal academic webpages, and other lawful scholarly channels.

4. Peer Review and Editorial Assessment

Submitted manuscripts are subject to editorial screening and, where appropriate, external peer review. The journal evaluates submissions for scholarly relevance, originality, methodological and academic quality, clarity of presentation, ethical compliance, and conformity with the journal's submission requirements. Editorial decisions are made independently on the basis of the manuscript and the review process.

5. Publication Ethics

The journal expects authors, reviewers, and editors to follow recognized principles of publication ethics. Manuscripts should be original, properly referenced, and free from plagiarism, fabrication, falsification, and other forms of academic misconduct. Conflicts of interest and relevant ethical considerations should be disclosed when applicable.

6. Access, Reuse, and Attribution

Readers and third parties may reuse material covered by CC BY 4.0 provided that attribution is given to the original author(s) and source, the license is identified and linked, and modifications are clearly indicated. The license does not remove rights that may exist outside its scope, including third-party material identified as being subject to separate terms.

7. Corrections and Retractions

When a published article requires correction, clarification, or retraction, the journal may publish an appropriate notice and maintain a transparent connection between the notice and the affected article. Editorial actions are taken in accordance with the journal's publication-ethics procedures.

8. Data, Materials, and Transparency

Authors are encouraged to provide sufficient methodological detail and, where appropriate and ethically permissible, information about data, materials, instruments, or other resources necessary to understand or reproduce the research. Any restrictions arising from privacy, confidentiality, copyright, or other legitimate considerations should be identified.

9. Creative Commons License

The journal's CC BY 4.0 license is administered by Creative Commons. The full legal terms are available at creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0/. Open-access background information is available from SPARC at sparcopen.org/open-access/.

Journal: Russian Language Studies (RLS)

Website: rlsj.ir